Press Release:

Dead Man Walking - The Concert Receives Film Award

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

The WorldFest International Film Festival has announced that “Not In Our Name: Dead Man Walking – The Concert” will receive one of the top four awards in the documentary film / Music Concert category at this year’s award ceremony slated for April 30th in Houston, Texas. The film was produced by Alan Ames and Associates and ActiveMusic, a non-profit 501C3 organization whose purpose is to produce benefit concerts and events designed to raise money for charitable causes and organizations.

The film itself was produced and directed by local Houston filmmaker Alan Ames on behalf of executive producers Tim Robbins and Susann McMahon. The concert, an ActiveMusic production, shot at the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles, CA., was broadcast live on the internet and will be released in June 2006 by Sony Legacy / BMG. “This is going to be one of those special nights that will never happen again” Tim Robbins was quoted as saying prior to the live event.

The concert film is hosted by Tim Robbins and features Eddie Vedder and Jeff Ament of Pearl Jam, Lyle Lovett, Ani Di Franco, Steve Earle, John Densmore (formerly of The Doors) David Robbins, Rahat Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan, Dildar Hussain and Sister Helen Prejean. The concert is based upon the film “Dead Man Walking” which Tim Robbins wrote and directed as an adaptation of the book by the same name written by Sister Helen Prejean. Susan Sarandon received an Academy Award for her portrayal of Sister Helen Prejean and starred opposite Sean Penn. Bruce Springsteen received a Grammy nomination for the title song of the film Dead Man Walking.

The film’s release coincides with the thirtieth anniversary of the reinstatement of the death penalty in the United States.

Advance copies of the DVD coupled with the re-release of the film’s soundtrack Will be available for purchase three weeks prior to its release date on the ActiveMusic web site www.activemusic.org.
